

Foj is a collective of artists, formed in January 2022. The outcome of their collaboration—consisting of eighteen members—was showcased in March of the following year through eleven different projects in an exhibition titled “Joint” in O Gallery.

Since the group’s inception, one of the primary challenges has been maintaining a cohesive rhythm of teamwork and fostering effective communication among members. Deliberate efforts to consult with each other on individual projects and keeping everyone informed have been facilitated through ongoing dialogue and occasional meetings. During this period, group members have engaged in collective activities by organizing and planning shared experiences such as trips, sharing design studios and collaborating on each other’s projects, cooking together, discussing issues in the art world, conducting study sessions, and creating collective memories. Through these lived experiences, they strive to deepen their understanding of their artistic journeys.
